American Medical News Index-1980

Prepared by the Division of Library and Archival Services

Volume 23

American Medical News
Index
Volume 23 - 1980

American Medical News reports on significant events, trends, and persons affecting medicine today. Every attempt is made to report accurately, concisely, and responsibly, in an effort to provide physicians and other health professionals with current and topical information.

The Index to American Medical News is divided into three sections: 1) list of subject headings; 2) subject index; and 3) author index. Most of the articles in American Medical News are indexed, including the brief items under MEDICINE'S WEEK. Not indexed are THIS WEEK IN JAMA, PROJECT USA, and product advertising. Names of persons about whom stories are written appear in the subject index. The names of authors of letters and of Impact articles are listed in the author index.

With volume 23 (1980), American Medical News began publishing three editions. Of these, only the one-star and three-star editions are indexed. Citations give date of issue and page number of the three-star edition. The page numbers of articles that appear only in the one-star edition are preceded by a "*". Similarly, articles appearing only in the three-star edition are noted "".
